CAROLYN DELOACH

DeLoach To Seek Sheriff Post

Carolyn DeLoach, a native of Bulloch county, has announced his candidacy for sheriff in the primary election on November 29th, 1951. Mr. DeLoach is the son of the late Z. T. DeLoach, and nephew of the late Bill H. DeLoach, one-time sheriff of Bulloch county. Mr. DeLoach is an ex-serviceman, having served eight years in the U. S. Navy. He was also connected with the Statesboro police department for three years. "If I am elected to the office of sheriff," Mr. DeLoach said in his announcement, "I intend to execute the duties of this office in an impartial and just manner and always to the highest degree of my ability."

Respectfully,
CAROLYN DELOACH.

AGRICULTURE HAS SAVING PROGRAM

Production And Marketing Administration Stresses The Importance Of Conservation

The 1952 Agricultural Conservation Program, it has been announced by Gus F. Geisler, administrator of the Production and Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture, who emphasizes conservation for production as well as protection of the nation's soil and water resources.

The nation's farmers, according to the administrator, will be encouraged and aided in carrying out the soil and water conservation program which will most effectively help increase production to meet defense requirements, and which at the same time will maintain and improve the productivity of the nation's farmland as an assurance of continued abundance. This double objective will guide state and county PMA committees in the selection and adaptation of conservation practices to the needs of each farm.

Through the locally elected PMA farm committees, each farmer in every agricultural county and community will be encouraged to examine his land and determine the most urgently needed conservation practices. Then he will designate the practices he intends to carry out under the 1952 Agricultural Conservation program, giving first consideration to the most urgently needed practices and using the limited assistance provided under ACP where it will be most effective.

Farmers will be expected to use the help provided by the soil conservation service, forest service, land-grant colleges, extension service, experiment stations and other services. Farmers having complete farm plans as a guide in determining the conservation practices to be carried out under the 1952 ACP.

By pin-pointing conservation practices to the needs on each individual farm, the program is expected to improve more and more of land on each farm. If the farmers, for instance, feel that ACP assistance is most urgently needed to help him build a system of terraces to keep his topsoil from washing away, then priority will be given this practice. He will be expected to carry out additional conservation practices without ACP assistance, but program assistance will be concentrated on these "first things first" types of practices.

As in previous years, the 1952 ACP assistance to the individual farmer will be on a share-the-cost basis for the practices approved by the PMA committee and county committee for the individual farm. The ACP is administered locally by elected farmer committees and is available to all farmers in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Participation is entirely voluntary, but to qualify for assistance farmers must carry out soil and water conservation practices in accordance with standards and specifications established for each state.

New 'Clintron' Tests Blood Samples In 30 Seconds Time

Diabetes, America's eighth killer disease, can now be detected by medical clinics in approximately one-tenth the time usually required with the aid of a new machine known as the "Hewson Clintron" which was exhibited at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Medical Society.

Developed by Mathewson Machine Works, Inc., of Quincy, Mass., the new machine makes possible the rapid screening of large groups of people for diabetes.

It has been estimated that more than 1,000,000 Americans unknowingly are diabetic. "When working at full capacity, the 'Clintron' can completely test a sample of blood in 30 seconds. In one recent mass test conducted by one technician, the machine screened 430 blood specimens in approximately 40 hours. Under normal test methods, the processing of this number of specimens would require 10 to 15 weeks of a laboratory technician's time, it was said.

According to the designing engineers, the speed of testing has been achieved by completely mechanizing the normal procedure for blood testing. The "Clintron" consists of a cast aluminum base, about the size of a small table-top, on which is mounted a turret with holders for 12 test tubes. A series of tubes are arranged vertically to hold the necessary chemical pills, and a cooling bath tank.

Within the heart of the machine is a small tubular electric heater, especially designed by engineers of the Hewson Electric Company to provide closely-controlled heating of the test tubes at various stages throughout the testing process.

Doctors Credit Cortisone With Saving Animal's Life

Cortisone was credited in Chicago with saving the life of a dog that was almost burned to death. The dog, a newly reported case, the American Veterinary Medical Association said, that a dog was brought to Texas veterinarians for treatment after suffering critical burns.

The dog, a prized 4-year-old female pointer, had been trapped in her pen during a grass fire. Deep burns covered nearly half of her body, and the case seemed hopeless. Because severe burns exhaust the adrenal hormone supply, veterinarians decided to give her cortisone, a synthetic adrenal gland hormone, along with other drug treatment to combat internal complications.

Improvement was steady under this treatment. After 25 days, the dog was well enough to return to her owner. After three months, healing was nearly complete. There were only a few scars and these did not interfere with her hunting. The AVMA said that cortisone also shows promise as a treatment for arthritis and certain eye diseases in animals, but it is in short supply that veterinarians cannot obtain it for routine use in their practices. Practically all of the cortisone now being produced is going to hospitals and physicians for treating human disease. However, larger supplies are expected to be available next year.

Facts on Feet

American industry could halve the nearly $1,000,000,000 bill it pays each year for accident, industrial fatigue and absenteeism resulting from foot ailments according to a report on a three-month industrial foot care program completed at the Garwood, N. Y. plant of Metal Syndicate, Inc. Anticipating an increased strain on its plant facilities because of defense orders, the firm set up a clinical program designed to cut its production and manpower losses arising from foot ailments. A preliminary survey of the program shows that industrial fatigue was reduced by 40 per cent and absenteeism dropped 22 per cent. It is anticipated that continuance of the foot care program as a permanent project will cut production losses even further. The Metal Syndicate employs more than 400 workers, of whom 389 underwent systematic foot examinations and follow-up care. Of these, 218 were women. The examinations and necessary treatment were given on the premises in an already existing first aid clinic.

Eyes At Work

Today's ominous threats to world peace and America's all-out program of industrial mobilization again emphasize the vital importance of efficient vision among preparedness workers. The Better Vision Institute points out, "Test after test has shown that factory production can be stepped up from 10 to 20 per cent by correcting workers' seeing faults and by improved lighting conditions. In a close-fought war between evenly matched opponents, the margin might spell the difference between victory and defeat. During World War II the Institute waged a vigorous campaign for eye-care and better lighting in industrial plants. The results were highly gratifying in that they made both workers and employers more sight-conscious. Now the job needs to be done again, and more strenuously than ever."

Here's The Low Down From Hickory Grove

I am going today to get the gun on Uncle Harry—he waits until January to give Congress and us citizens his report on the "State of the Nation." I am skeptical about waiting on him. We may be in such a mess by that time that it will be less attempting to unscramble an omelet which is not easy.

I like this country—I don't please me to see it drift and toss, with no anchor—to take on the appearance of just another country—not the America of our grandfathers and grandpas. With all our experimenting and devices and sweet plans and with Sambo in on every deal, you will not venture down onto Main street—unless you have not been around much and are still a sucker—and expect to find everybody particularly happy anyone. We have no more food in the ice box, than of yore—we have doubts about our future security when it is in hands of other than our very own—we don't know what to think, or what is next.

So I say this, don't wait until January to hear Uncle Harry's alibi—get it out and get it over. Your congressman and senator are at home now—they will listen, if you talk turkey. Don't leave everything to me.

Yours with the low-down,
JO SERRA.

Vets Who Lose Checks Are Advised To Report

William K. Barrett, director, State Department of Veterans Service, has explained what to do when you have lost your government check—be it a Veterans Administration payment, a family allotment check, a social security check or any other kind.

You should notify the person who issued the check immediately, requesting that payment be stopped and that a substitute check be issued to you. If you can't remember just what government agency issued your check, report the loss directly to the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

Your letter should contain the purpose for which the check was issued, its date of issue, number (if known), and if possible the exact amount of the check.

Claimants other than the payee of the original check must present satisfactory evidence of ownership if they hope to get a duplicate check issued.

In the case of a mutilated check, it is important that the check be sent along with the request for replacement. In the event a request has been made for a supposedly "lost" check which turns up later—after someone has been requested or the duplicate issued—the payee should report the fact to the issuer or the Treasury Department. Under no circumstances should both checks be cashed.

FOR SALE—Five-room house in good condition, close in on Olmit street, price, $4,750; a real bargain; can give immediate possession. JOSHUA TETTEROW. (15nov11p)

Santa Claus Plans Pay An Early Visit

Santa Claus will pay an early visit to Bulloch county this year. A jolly, ruddy checked version of old Saint Nick grins gleefully from the 1951 Christmas Seals, which Bulloch county citizens will receive in their mail this week, according to Janice W. Ethridge, Bulloch county Christmas Seal sale chairman.

"Santa Claus is a particularly fitting theme for the Christmas Seal," the Bulloch county chairman said. "Although the task of bringing tuberculosis under control is a large one, the purchases of Christmas Seals by Americans in the past forty-five years have made possible great progress against the disease, which through preventable, caused nearly 1,000 deaths in Georgia last year and brought grief and suffering to thousands of others."

Mrs. Ethridge pointed out that by buying Christmas Seals, Bulloch countians are actually making a gift of health to themselves, their families and to future generations.

"Buy and use Christmas Seals generously," said Mrs. Ethridge. "Send a gift of health on every Christmas card, letter and package."

Only Two More Days For "Care For Korea"

The General Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsoring a Thanksgiving-season campaign to send CARE food and textile packages from Americans to Korean war victims. The help CARE packages bring to the people in many countries of Europe and Asia is well known. No time could be more appropriate to extend that aid than now, as Americans prepare to give thanks for the abundance we enjoy—an abundance beyond the wildest dreams of the hungry and cold men, women and children in South Korea.

This campaign started November 12th and will continue through November 24th. The time is short. Send your contribution to either Mrs. Jake Smith, president of the Junior Women's Club, or Mrs. L. M. Durden, president of Senior Women's Club in Statesboro.
